Arab-Israeli Refugee Plan Is In View For Middle East Stability

A new hope of instituting an effective resettlement program for Palestinian Arabs in the Arab League countries has arisen in Israel as a result of the Leagues' reported decision to begin an immediate study of the problems involved.

Israel officials have welcomed the decision, which still has to be confirmed officially by the League, as a possible turning point in the endeavors to bring about a settlement between their country and her Arab neighbors. If confirmed, the decision would represent a fundamental change in the League's policy toward Israel, which hitherto had been based on a demand for return of the refugees to their homes and land in Israel.

No one in Israel pretends to know what led the League to the decision at the wind-up of its latest meeting in Cairo, says the New York Times. But it is known that Britain has been pressing the Arab countries to undertake resettlement in their own lands with United Nations financial and technical help, and it is suspected that United States stepped in recently with strong support for the British.

Israel officials reiterated their country's preparedness to help finance a resettlement program. The figure of £1,000,000 Israeli (approximately $2,810,000) has been mentioned in the past as the initial Israeli contribution to the reintegration fund voted recently by the United Nations General Assembly.

The Assembly appropriated $30,000,000 dollars for the reintegration fund. Israeli officials, who well knew the problems of resettlement from their own experiences, realize this sum could not go far toward settling the future of all 700,000 or 800,000 refugees now [illegible] assistance from the United [illegible] Works and Rehabilita-

What these officials would like to see is an effective start made with these funds so as to bring about a favorable psychological reaction among the refugees to the idea of settling permanently away from their former homes. If the refugees can be given a firm hope of a decent future in, say, northern Syria or Iraq, Israeli officials believe their present passive resistance to resettlement will be replaced by enthusiastic cooperation.

The Israeli view that no stability was possible in the Middle East as long as the refugees remained unsettled, and that the settlement must be made outside the borders of Israel, appears to have been accepted by the United Nations agencies concerned with Israeli-Arab problems, and by Britain and the United States as well. The Palestine Conciliation Commission has been working hard to bring the Arab League around to this, and the League's decision is considered in Israel as a merited triumph for the Commission.

It is recognized however, that a long distance separates the decision by the League and implementation of a settlement program. For one thing, some of the Arab leaders who took part in the decision in Cairo will have to face parliaments long used to being assured that the refugees would regain their land. For another, large-scale settlement of the refugees could cause serious internal problems for some of the Arab governments. The delicate political balance between the Christians and Moslems in Lebanon could be upset, for example, by a heavy influx of Moslems.

The Israelis do not underrate these problems facing any resettlement plan, says the New York Times, but they consider the benefits to be obtained from a settlement for the region as a whole would be well worth efforts by the United States and Britain, to get

W.J.C. Leader Calls U.S. Action On Nazis A "Travesty"

The sweeping action by American authorities in mitigating the sentences of dozens of German war criminals threatens to turn the vital code of offenses against mankind established at Nuremberg into a "travesty", Dr. Israel Goldstein, chairman of the Western Hemisphere executive of the World Jewish Congress, said after an exhaustive study of the text of the American decisions. Dr. Goldstein, whose statement was based on a report by the WJC's panel of legal experts, pointed out that executive clemency was granted to virtually ninety per cent of the Nazi war criminals whose cases were reviewed. This action, lightening the sentences of men convicted of slaughtering hostages, indulging in mass murder, or carrying out slave labor policies, was taken despite the fact that neither the evidence in the original trials nor the justice of the original sentences were challenged by the American authorities.

The WJC leader said: "A law which is not adequately enforced rapidly becomes a travesty. There can be little respect for the Nuremberg Code when 89 out of 101 war criminals are granted clemency at one and the same time and for no clear reason and when, as has occured over the past two years, dozens of men convicted of heinous crimes are released."

Dr. Goldstein pointed out that, even before the recent set of mitigations, American authorities had released a total of 109 war criminals before the expiration of their jail terms. Today only 517 war criminals remain in prison in the American Zone out of nearly 1,800 sentenced to prison, and if the present rate of pardons continues the number will dwindle rapidly. The degree of generosity being shown by the American officials in [illegible] only a few weeks ago SS Gen. Josias Prinz Zu Waldeck, commander of the Buchenwald concentration camp, became a free man after his life term was reduced to 20 years and then whittled down again to time already served. Such actions, in themselves shocking, become dangerous in times such as these when new atrocities are being committed and when the possibility of another world war brings with it the threat of mass atrocities, Dr. Goldstein warned, saying that every weakening of the Nuremberg Code menaces not only minority groups but mankind itself.

"Magic Finger" Pianist Gets Navy Award On Day Of Death

Eddy Duchin, the pianist and orchestra leader, died in New York at Memorial Hospital of leukemia. Mr. Duchin, whose full name was Edwin Frank Duchin, was 41 years old. He had been under treatment for several months. Earlier in the day Mr. Duchin had received a citation for meritorious service in the second World War from Rear Admiral Walter S. DuLaney, commandant of the Third Naval District.

In 1942 he enlisted in the Navy. Refusing to be typed as a musician, he demanded combat duty. His orchestra was disbanded. Assigned to duty on a destroyer, he took part in the D-Day operations off Normandy in 1944, and the Iwo Jima and Okinawa operations in the Pacific. He was discharged in 1945 with the rank of lieutenant commander.

The Rev. Dr. Julius Mark, senior rabbi at Temple Emanu-El and a lieutenant commander in the United States Naval Reserve, who officiated, told 400 persons at the service that Mr. Duchin was "beloved by unnumbered thousands" and "it can be said of him that he never caused a tear to flow except when he died."

Standing at the bier was a Navy honor guard from the New York Naval Shipyard in Brooklyn and Cmdr. Charles H. A. Rohr, U. S. N. They were assigned by Adm. Walter S. DuLaney, commandant, 3rd Naval District, to mark Mr. Duchin's World War II service as a lieutenant commander in charge of a destroyer squadron.

Mr. Duchin was to be cremated at Ferncliff, Ardsley, N. Y., and

JUSTICE OF ORIGINAL SENTENCES UNQUESTIONED IN U.S. CONFIRMATION OF CLEMENCY TOWARD NAZI CRIMINALS

The reprieve of twenty-one Nazi war criminals from the gallows which was confirmed by Gen. Thomas T. Handy, United States Commander in Chief in Europe, and by John J. McCloy, United States High Commissioner for Germany, in the review of 101 war crime convictions, were acts of clemency, it was made clear. The essential justice of the original sentences by United States Army and Military Government tribunals was not questioned in the explanatory statements recalling the horrors of the Nazi epoch, particularly atrocities on the battlefield and in concentration camps, reports the New York Times.

Two prisoners sentenced to death by Army courts could not "rightfully" be granted clemency, said General Handy. They were George Schallermair, a former roll call leader who beat and murdered inmates at the Dachau concentration camp, even helping a dentist extract gold teeth from his victims, and former Adjutant Hans Schmidt, who directly supervised the strangulations of victims in the crematory at Buchenwald.

S. S. (Elite Guard) Gen. Oswald Pohl, who was responsible for and personally participated in the liquidation of Jews at the Oswiecim (Auschwitz) camp, the destruction of the Warsaw ghetto, the pillage of Jews in the East and the selection of prisoners for medical experiments, had his death sentence confirmed in a decision by Mr. McCloy.

The United States High Commissioner confirmed also the death sentences of S. S. Generals Otto Ohlendorf, Erich Neumann, Walter Braune and Paul Blobel, for their responsibility in the murder of 2,000,000 people by extermination squads. For them "no mitigating circumstances whatsoever [illegible]

In three instances, Mr. McCloy said, new evidence had prompted his revision of death sentences. Franz Eirenschmalz, who had been sentenced to death along with General Pohl, had this modified to nine years. Walter Haensche and Eugen Steimle, who had been sentenced to death along with General Ohlendorf and other extermination criminals, had their sentences reduced to fifteen and twenty years, respectively.

Of special interest among the decisions by Mr. McCloy was that which revised the twenty-year sentence of former Maj. Gen. Wilhelm Speidel from twenty years to the time served. Convicted as a participant in the shooting of hostages in the Soviet Union, General Speidel is a brother of former Lieut. Gen. Hans Speidel, who is a member of the West German committee now negotiating with the Allies on possible German remilitarization.

In the same case, despite a great deal of German pressure, Mr. McCloy countenanced no change in the life sentences of former Generals Wilhelm List and Walter Kuntze. He said he could find no "extenuation for the energy, as demonstrated by their own signed orders, with which they appear to have carried out the terrorization policy of their command."

The High Commissioner announced, however, that on the recommendation of the clemency board he was investigating the possibility of medical parole in accordance with the standard practice in United States prisons in Germany, says the New York Times.

The clemency board, upon which Mr. McCloy based a large measure of his decisions, was composed of David W. Peck, presiding justice of the Appelate Division of the New York State Supreme Court, chairman; Frederick A. Moran, chairman of the New York Board of Parole; and Conrad E. Snow, assistant legal adviser to the State Department.

Covering its duties and reactions in the course of studying all cases and interviewing all prisoners, the board stressed that the United States trials at Nuremberg should present three major lessons:

1. Recognition of the laws of humanity, which no people or state can flaunt, and the certain knowledge that the individual engaged in their violation will be held accountable to society and punished.

2. Education of the people of the world as to what took place under the Third Reich, that they may become more alert to guard against the risks of repetition.

3. Individual justice for the individual defendant.

After covering in graphic terms, such as have not been written since the early post-war days, the Nazis' slaughter of Jews, the subjugation of conquered peoples, the violation of the rules of warfare, the pillage and enslavement, the resettlement and kidnappings, the brutal medical experiments and the subjugation of justice to Nazism, the board referred to the "uniform and consistent" defense of obedience to orders.

"And now we have, five years after his (Hitler's) end and the end of the war, all of these defendants chanting superior orders and contending that in an entire nation of sixty millions of people there was only one man, or a very small group of men, responsible for any and all the things which happened, and that no one else was responsible for anything, and that as long as there was an order which trickled down from the top, everyone in the wash of it enjoyed an immunity bath," the board declared.

However, in mitigating the circumstances, the board rejected the defense of superior orders "as it was rejected by the tribunals in the trials."

To the charge that the war crimes trials had been ex post facto, the board declared that "there was no German law that these defendants were observing at the time they were violating all the tenets of international law and natural law"; and to the charge of judging guilt by association, the board replied that "a man who joins and actively participates in a criminal organization, knowing that it is criminal, should be held responsible to some extent for the acts of the organizations he enters and supports."

On the subject of clemency, the board declared that "clemency where any grounds can be found for exercising charitable instincts may be an encouraging example, but a mistaken tenderness toward the perpetrators of mass murder would be a mockery. It would undo what Nuremberg has accomplished if in the end we were guided entirely by the consideration of sympathy or generosity."

Yet the board exercised clemency in the case of former Air Field Marshal Erhard Milch, State Secretary in Herman Goering's Air Ministry, who was sentenced to life imprisonment for advocating and exploiting slave labor. With obvious reluctance, according to the New York Times, Mr. McCloy followed the recommendation of revising the sentence to fifteen years, pointing out that "this is a sharp deduction considering the high responsibility of this man."

Mother And Twins Are Seniors In College

A mother and her twin children discovered in New York to their surprise that they were classmates at college. Adding up credits after registering for the spring session at Columbia University's School of General Studies, Mrs. Marjorie Salant and Miss Maedra Asch and Thane Asch found out that come June they could hang their diplomas simultaneously in their home at 516 East Eighty-seventh Street.

None of the three ever expected their educational paths to cross. With mother studying anthropology, daughter majoring in music and son preparing for Cornell Medical School, the family never attended class at the same time. Mrs. Salant began attending Columbia's adult extension courses in 1941, Miss Asch started in 1946 and her brother enrolled after leaving the Air Force in 1946.

Triumphantly, Mrs. Salant declared: "The children tried, but they'll not manage to get through school ahead of me. Now we are all seniors!"

In recent years, she said they studied in separate rooms and shared in the house chores. "When I had exams," she said, "the children usually didn't, and they prepared the meals. And the other way around. It's been a regular cooperative."

That the entire family goes to Columbia is natural. The late Dr. Joseph J. Asch, father of the 25-year-old twins, was a graduate of the university's College of Physicians and Surgeons, and Edward O. Salant, their stepfather, is a graduate of Columbia College.

"When it became apparent that my job as a mother would be done sooner or later," Mrs. Salant recalled, "the urge to study came to me and I've taken a few courses each year since."

Mother and daughter will continue at Columbia next fall, doing graduate work. Mr. Asch, a former radar instructor, will enter medical school in September. All agree that education has enhanced their home life.

Appointment of Dr. I. M. Tarlov as professor and director of the department of neurosurgery and neurology at New York Medical College, Flower-Fifth Avenue Hospital, was announced. During World War II, Dr. Tarlov directed a research project that led to the development of an improved method of repairing nerves by using blood plasma clot as an adhesive rather than by the customary method of sewing with threads. He is the author of a book on the subject, "Plasma Clot Suture of Nerves and Nerve Roots."

Decry Censorship Of "Oliver Twist"

Eagle-Lion Classics, distributors of the British-made feature film, "Oliver Twist," received a resolution passed by directors of the U.S. National Board of Review opposing "open or covert actions of intimidation, boycott or arbitrary censorship" aimed at the film. The adaptation of the Charles Dickens novel was withheld from distributors in the U. S. since 1948 after protests by the Anti-Defamation League and other groups on the ground that the character of Fagin was anti-Semitic.

The picture was booked last November by the Inter-State Circuit of Texas to open in its theatres but later in November the Production Code Administration, the film industry's self-regulative organization, denied its seal of approval to the J. Arthur Rank presentation. That move, however, was followed by the approval of the film "without change" by the New York State Censor Board.

Eagle-Lion Classics entered a formal appeal to the Motion Picture Association of America's board of directors from the decision of the Production Code Administration, headed by Joseph I. Breen. Passage of the resolution now aligns the National Board of Review not only with the New York State Censor Board but also with the American Civil Liberties Union, which is already on record as being opposed to censorship of the picture, according to the distributing company.

The resolution, passed after the directors of the National Board of Review viewed "Oliver Twist" at a private screening on December 28, reads:

"This film version of one of the great classics of social protest should not be kept from the public by open or covert actions of intimidation, boycott or arbitrary censorship. Those who espouse such repression do so, they assert, to prevent group antagonism. In our opinion such methods are not the American way to achieve these ends."

HOW JEWISH MUSIC CAME TO AMERICA

BY DR. A. W. BINDER, OF THE NATIONAL WELFARE BOARD

A cultural event like the month-long Jewish Music Festival cannot be proclaimed by command. It takes many years of pioneering, first by composers, then by performers and publishers, be they individuals or groups. The modern Jewish music movement in America is about half a century old. Actually there were already signs of it early in the 19th century. We hear of a chorus organized in 1818 in New York's Shearith Israel Synagogue (now the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue) for the dedication of its Mills Street Synagogue in lower Manhattan. While organized choir singing at that time encountered hard going in the country's synagogues, as it did in Europe, special choral groups were permitted to organize for dedications and other extra-synagogal activities.

The first cantor and reader of the Charleston Jewish community was Isaac Da Costa, who was engaged for this post in 1756, and was followed by Jacob de la Motta, Abraham Alexander, Emanuel Nunes Carvalho, and by Gustavius Poznanski. The latter, in 1838, introduced the organ into Jewish worship, a startling innovation in those days. Toward the middle of the 19th century such cantors as Leo Merzbacher at New York's Temple Emanuel, Leon Sternberger at Temple Anshe Chesed, and Ignatius Ritterman at Temple Bnai Jeshurun were the pioneers of synagogue music in the country.

As a souvenir of the Jewish Women's section of the "Parliament of Religions," held in Chicago in connection with the 1893 Columbian Exposition, a volume of Jewish Music was issued, entitled, "Principal Melodies of the Synagogue from Ancient Times to the Present." It was edited by two of the outstanding cantors of that period: Alois Kaiser, of Temple Ohab Shalom, Baltimore; and William Sparger, of Temple Emanuel, New York. In this volume one finds an attempt at an historical account of Jewish music, as well as traditional modes and melodies of the synagogue for Sabbaths and holidays, plus hymns and extended compositions by composers living here and abroad.

Among the factors which led to the modern Jewish music movement, both here and abroad at the turn of the century, were: The Zionist movement, which brought forth a tremendous amount of music; the founding of the Yiddish theatre, which in its early period contributed many songs that have since become folksongs, and the musical activities of the Jewish Folk Song Society in eastern Europe, which gathered, harmonized and performed Jewish folk songs and began to utilize this material in larger art forms, through which it endeavored to create an indigenous musical style.

Of great importance was Ernest Bloch's arrival in the country in 1916. He succeeded in getting Artur Bodanzky, then the Wagnerian conductor at the Metropolitan Opera House, to perform a program of his (Bloch's) orchestral works at Carnegie Hall. The program included "Three Psalms" for baritone and orchestra, the "Three Jewish Poems", and the first movement of his "Israel" symphony. This concert showed the younger generation of Jewish composers what Jewish music in larger forms should be. Individuals such as the late Joseph Achron, one of the pioneer members of the Jewish Folk Song Society, and a very gifted composer; Joseph Yasser, noted musicologist, whose theories of Jewish music have helped all Jewish composers, and the work of Solomon Rosowsky in cantillation have been strong influences among Jewish composers.

Large choral bodies of mixed voices began to flourish at the turn of this century. In 1911 the Poale Zion Singing Society was organized in New York. This was followed by the Hadassah Choral Union in 1916, the 92 St. YMHA Choral Society in 1917, the Paterson Singing Society in 1918, the Workmen's Circle Chorus in 1925 and many other choruses in the large cities throughout the land. These choral bodies sang folk music, liturgical music and choral works in larger forms, giving composers an opportunity to hear their works and inspiring them toward the creation of an extensive Jewish choral literature.

In the field of publication there was a great deal of pioneering too. The first publishers of Jewish music were the music dealers in lower Manhattan, chief among whom were the Bloch Publishing Co., Jacob P. Katz (now the Metro Music Co.), and a number of others. This does not mean that such publishers as G. Schirmer and Carl Fisher stood inactively by. They, too, as well as other publishers, have published a certain amount of all types of Jewish music.

The final steps which led to Jewish Music Festival Month were taken by two organizations. The first was "Maillam" (founded in 1931), an organization which aided musical development in Israel and gave monthly concerts of Jewish Art Music in New York, and the Jewish Music Forum, organized in 1939, which was in effect at that time a Jewish musicological society. It was this society's symposium, "The Status of Synagogue Music in America," held in 1940, which led to the raising of musical standards in religious worship and to the establishment of the Hebrew Union School of Sacred Music in 1947 in New York.

Early biblical chant formed the foundations of the Byzantine and Gregorian chant of the church. Jews have contributed throughout musical history to all branches of its development. Today, some composers have chosen to write in a general musical idiom, others have chosen to draw inspiration from their ancestral heritage. All are, however, contributing toward the development of the art of music.

WHAT
Personal Planners
ARE SAYING
"This information came when most needed . . ."
". . . now I think we can really live and save with Personal Planning."
"Up-to-date and practical for present living conditions."

People in every walk of life are finding benefit in Personal Planning — and many of them have written to tell us how they feel about it. All agree on one point in particular: the need for Personal Planning in these days of high living costs.

WHAT IS Personal Planning?

Personal Planning shows you how to live within your income and enjoy it.

Tall order? Not as tall as you think. Personal Planning faces facts. One, that you have to live within your income. Two, that you must have a budget-plan that works for you, not you for it. Three, that a budget-plan — to work — must be your budget-plan, planned for your needs by you. It must fit your individual circumstances.

And Personal Planning goes one big step further. It shows you how to enjoy life within your income, by helping you to plan and build on what you have.

You can only be happy today if you're not worried about tomorrow. Pick up your copy of "Personal Planning" today. It's yours for the asking at any branch of the B of M. There's no obligation . . . except to yourself.

You will like reading our B of M booklet about Personal Planning. It's written in a breezy, informal style and generously illustrated with light, cheerful sketches.

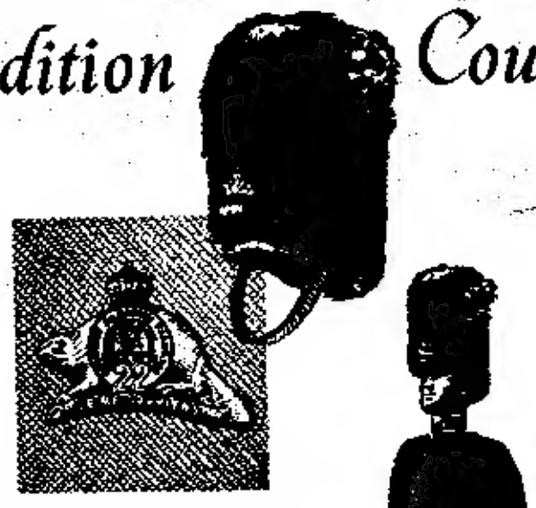
Tradition Counts



The Royal 22nd Regiment

Affectionately known as the "Van Doos", the Royal 22nd Regiment was organized in 1920 to carry on the fighting traditions of the 22nd Battalion C.E.F. In their motto, "Je me souviens" ("I remember"), they recall the stirring achievements of the early Quebec militia.

During World War II the 22nd served in all the important engagements from Sicily northward through Italy. In addition to their traditional duty of garrisoning the Quebec Citadel, the "Van Doos" have contributed to Canada's Special Force for service overseas. Proud of their glorious past, the Royal 22nd is one of Canada's honoured regiments in which . . . TRADITION COUNTS.

Students At Hebrew University Have Their Problems

BY EMANUEL LEVY

With the reopening of the Hebrew University and the commencement of the new year of study, it is likely that the current shortage will confront students with an array of problems even more formidable than those hitherto encountered. Of the two thousand students now registered at the University, over three-quarters (including five hundred ex-servicemen and women whose maintenance grants from the Ministry of Defence expired December last) will have to take on part-time work in order to provide for maintenance and the payment of fees. The only recipients of grants will be a hundred ex-servicemen of World War II, and a small number of students who have special prizes and allowances. And although the university authorities have granted either partial or total exemption from fees in a substantial number of cases, the overall situation will nevertheless remain largely unaltered.

The Students' Association operates an employment agency which, in cooperation with the Jerusalem Labour Exchange and other local organizations, was successful last year in placing many students in part-time jobs of an unskilled nature, such as watchmen, cleaners, and building-trade labourers. Most of the clerical and teaching posts held by students were, however, secured individually, as these types of vacancies are not normally notified to the Agency.

A restaurant is also maintained by the Students' Association, in which satisfying, if plain, meals are provided for the price of 145 pruta (about 45c). In addition, an average of well over two hundred meals per month were provided free of charge last year to students without means of support, and a sum of $2,250 has been set aside for this purpose during this school year. Plans are also well advanced for the opening of an additional restaurant where, at the cost of 180 pruta (about 60c) it will be possible to enjoy meals of a higher quality than previously supplied.

Last year, too, over $1,500 was made available to students in the form of small loans, and a further $3,300 has now been placed in reserve against anticipated future requirements.

The question of accommodation has become doubly acute this term, both by reason of the large increase in the student body, (over six hundred new enrolments this year) and of the extortionate rents of between $45 and $80 per month demanded for anything that remotely falls into the category of "a room".

Last year, 130 beds averaging three to a room, were made available in the hostels organized by the Hebrew University and the Students' Association, at a rent of $7.50 per month inclusive of water and electricity. As a result of much hard work during the summer vacation, the number of places was augmented, and this month, when two new hostels at Ramat Rachel and Musrara will be ready for occupation, the total number of beds will have risen to about 250. In the meantime the situation remains serious. About fifty students recently arrived from Iraq are now living under canvas at Talpiot, and a considerable number of prospective students have had to postpone their enrolment because of the impossibility of obtaining accommodation at prices within their means.

The situation is aggravated by the fact that instruction is carried on in some thirty buildings scattered throughout the city, and by the general shortage of rooms available for lectures. This entails a staggering of hours of instruction between 8 a.m. and 7 p.m., with the result that, however carefully students endeavour to adjust their part-time employment, lectures are inevitably missed and nerves frayed by the incessant rush to and from the University.

In these circumstances, therefore, it is not surprising that student life as such is almost non-existent. If, in addition to the difficulties of maintenance, proper account is taken of the fact that students are obliged to do most of their reading from English text books (which language, to say the least, most of them are hardly capable of reading with facility) the wonder is that any but a small minority have either the time or energy for anything other than work and study. And it must be remembered that, apart from these special afflictions, students are called upon to participate in the monthly and annual manoeuvres of the Reserves with further disruption of studies.

The age and background structure of the student body is also of interest in explaining the lack of group life and cohesion. Of the 1,400 students registered at the University last year, over one-half were ex-servicemen and women

CLASS IN COOKERY

CHALLAH (BREAD)

three and one-half cups lukewarm water
one-half cup cooking oil
two level teaspoons salt
one-quarter cup sugar
two ounces baker's yeast
three eggs
one egg for brushing the loaf
nine or ten cups flour

Beat the three eggs, add sugar and oil, and beat well. Add one-half cup of the lukewarm water. Dissolve the yeast in another half-cup water, and leave it for five minutes. Then mix it well; and add the yeast and water to the egg mixture. Sift flour and salt together, and add it to the egg and yeast mixture alternately with the two and one-half cups water, until the dough is soft. Turn dough out on to a floured board, and knead for about ten minutes. Return it to bowl, and allow to stand for one-half hour. Knead again; and grease dough and place it in greased bowl; leave it for at least three-quarters or an hour, in a warm place, until the dough has risen to double in size. Divide into three portions; shape each piece in a long roll; and braid as for challah; or shape into rolls. Place in greased baking pan; grease loaf or rolls; and allow to stand until double in size, at least one-half hour. Just before baking, brush the loaf or rolls with the extra egg, which has been well-beaten with a pinch of sugar. Bake in a 350-degree oven for about one hour, or until brown.

SOUR CREAM COOKIES

one-third cup shortening
two-thirds cup granulated sugar one egg
one-quarter teaspoon baking soda
one-half teaspoon salt
one and two-third cups sifted cake flour three-quarter teaspoon nutmeg one-half cup sour cream
one-half cup chopped walnuts
one teaspoon baking powder

Work shortening until creamy, add two-thirds cup sugar, then stir in well-beaten egg. Sift soda, flour, baking powder, salt, and one-half teaspoon of the nutmeg. Add to egg mixture alternately with sour cream, small amounts at a time. Add nuts. Drop mixture by teaspoonful onto a greased cookie sheet. Press each cookie flat with bottom of wet glass dipped in granulated sugar; then sprinkle tops with remaining one-quarter teaspoon nutmeg combined with an extra tablespoon of sugar. Bake in hot oven 400 degrees for ten or twelve minutes. This makes three dozen cookies.

H.U.C. Publishes Address By Famous Rabbi

Only as the sanctuary and laboratory become allies and co-workers can we hope to attain the beginnings of the dream of a good life for man upon this earth. This statement was made by the late Rabbi Joshua Loth Liebman in an address at the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion of Cincinnati, his alma mater, in February, 1948, four months before his untimely death. That address by the famous rabbi of Temple Israel, in Boston, Mass., and author of the distinguished best-seller, "Peace of Mind," is published now by the Joshua Loth Liebman Department of Human Relations of the College-Institute under the title, "Morality and Immorality — The Problem of Conscience."

The problem of conscience, Dr. Liebman said, began in the Bible "with the awareness of the still, small voice of God, the conscience within each human spirit. And in our Bible, conscience was described vividly and richly, not in any narrow sense. The world of morality for the prophets of Israel certainly encompassed many things transcending sensuality. It was a world of just relationships between men and women, parents and children, workers and employers."

The feeling of man's guilt and sinfulness was brought to western civilization with the influence of Hellenism, "the effect of Plato and particularly the mystery religions, and with the motif that entered Christianity with the Hellenistic aspects of Paul." Tracing the development of guilt feelings further, Dr. Liebman pointed out that, "In a certain sense, at the time of the industrial revolution, selfishness, oppression, power and pride were silk-hatted and dubbed 'initiative,' 'thrift,' 'creative ingenuity,' 'individualism'. In the western world, sin, being equated with sensuality, really allowed many of the most antisocial impulses of human nature to run rampant."

"Millions of men and women," Dr. Liebman said, "without knowing it, carry their childhood conscience with them to their grave. They torment themselves and they torment society. They are either cruel to themselves or cruel to the world as a result of carrying these earliest prohibitions and commandments with them as long as they live . . . What happens is that sex, anger, hostility, aggression—whatever terms you wish to use — all of these elements in our earliest conscience, all of the prohibitions and the denials and the commandments that have been given to us in these earliest years — become the final authorities with which we wrestle all our lives, many times unsuccessfully and tragically."

The psychiatrist, he said, must deal most often with "problems of guilt, uncertainty about right and wrong, guilt feelings that are morbid, torturing, sometimes destructive." The religionist, on the other hand, seeks "insights and clarity about morality, the nature of good and evil, right and wrong."

Dr. Liebman's address was one of a series on "Aspects of Religion and Psychiatry" which marked the beginning of the College-Institute department now bearing his name. It appears as a brochure with the permission and generous cooperation of Mrs. Joshua Loth Liebman, of Boston. The College-Institute Department of Human Relations series of brochures in the field of psychiatry and religion includes, in addition to the present one, "Man's Place in God's World" and "Concerning Religious Values — A Psychiatrist's Viewpoint," both by Dr. Sol W. Ginsburg, New York psychiatrist and lecturer in psychiatry at the New York College of Physicians and Surgeons; and "Emotional Security of the Child," by Dr. Othilda Krug, Cincinnati psychiatrist and assistant professor of psychiatry at the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine.

"Morality and Immorality — The Problem of Conscience," by Dr. Joshua Loth Liebman, is available from the publisher, the Joshua Loth Liebman Department of Human Relations of the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion, Clifton Avenue, Cincinnati 20, Ohio.

BUILDER IS CHAIRMAN OF BROTHERHOOD DINNER

Joel W. Schenker, president of the Gregory-Roth-Schenker Corporation, one of America's top ten building firms, has been named co-chairman of the World Brotherhood dinner to be held in New York by the Jewish Theological Seminary of America on Sunday, March 18, in the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria, announced State Housing Commissioner Herman T. Stichman, chairman of the dinner.

As director of Foreign Shelter for the Foreign Economic Administration during World War II, Mr. Schenker planned and directed the erection of 30,000 prefabricated houses in the United Kingdom during the 1943 and 1944 bombings; later the construction of 5,000 huge barracks shipped into France immediately after "D" Day, and the building of 3,000 homes for workers in France for the French Ministry of Reconstruction and Urbanism. In 1948, he made a housing survey for the Israeli Government, and during the following year supervised the building of homes for 4,000 Israeli immigrants.

SUN OF CANADA'S 1950 BUSINESS LARGEST OF ANY CANADIAN LIFE COMPANY

POLICYHOLDERS' DIVIDENDS AGAIN INCREASED

Four hundred and forty-one million dollars of new life insurance was issued by the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada in 1950, the largest amount written by any Canadian life company during the year, and over $68 million (18.4%) more than the total for the preceding year. The volume of new insurance written during 1950 was greater than any of recent years and represents the substantial total of $1,736,000 for each working day. George W. Bourke, President of the Sun Life, in releasing the 80th Annual Report announced a further increase in policyholders' dividends effective April 1, 1951, bringing the total amount payable this year to more than $26 million.

Benefits at New High

The report reveals the strong position of the Company and the continuing expansion of its business and services. Total Sun Life insurance in force now amounts to $4,462,000,000, or $275 million (6.6%) more than a year ago. Group business now in force is $1,085,000,000, an increase of 13.8%. Over $92 million of new Group business was written in 1950 compared with $62 million in 1949. Payments to Sun Life policyholders in 1950 amounted to $121,476,000, a new high, bringing to $2,361,860,000 total benefits paid since the Company's first policy was issued in 1871.

Assets of the Sun Life increased during 1950 by $70 million, and now stand at $1,597,000,000, 73% of which is invested in government, municipal, public utility and industrial bonds. Mortgage loans, reflecting the trend in home building, showed an increase of $31 million for the year, bringing the total to $163 million, or 12% of assets. The rate of interest earned on the assets in 1950 was 3.61% as against 3.48% in 1949 and 3.30% in 1948.

Distribution of Business

The international character of the Company's business is illustrated by the amount of insurance and annuities in force in the various countries where the Sun Life operates: Canada 41%; United States 38%; Great Britain 12%; other countries 9%.

Mr. Bourke, in his review of the year, discussed the value of life insurance in the fight against inflation, and pointed out that life insurance premiums, while serving to provide protection for individuals and families, also add to savings which, in turn, benefit the nation as a whole through investments for essential purposes. The business of life insurance reflects the voluntary co-operation of the millions of men and women whose confidence and faith it enjoys. In return, the companies have established traditions of service and integrity which are outstanding in the annals of human endeavour.

Steps Against Inflation

Mr. Bourke offered five suggestions as important countermoves against inflation: (1) Purchase only what is necessary. (2) Increase productivity by greater efficiency and maximum effort. (3) Finance defence and other necessary national expenditures on the pay-as-you-go principle. (4) Avoid wasteful government expenditures and duplication of service. (5) Increase personal savings.

A copy of the Sun Life's complete 1950 Annual Report to Policyholders, including the President's review of the year, will be sent to each policyholder or may be obtained from the Head Office in Montreal or from any of the branch, group or mortgage offices of the Company from coast to coast.

The Idolatry Of Ideologies

Text: Exodus 32.1: "And when the people saw that Moses delayed to come down from the Mount, the people gathered themselves together under Aaron, and said unto him: 'Up, make us a god who shall go before us; for as for this man Moses, the man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we know not what is become of him!'"

Only forty days after the Israelites received the ten commandments on Mount Sinai they committed a grave sin. They turned to idol worship. They who but yesterday, had pledged to live by God's moral law forgot Moses and God and madly danced around a golden calf shouting, "This is thy God, O, Israel." What happened thirty-five hundred years ago has been repeated time and again through history. People have made and are making golden calves, false gods. These gods lead to disappointment and tragedy. Behold, the fetish we make of social position, money, and power.

Our age is guilty of idolatry of ideologies. What is an ideology? A body of ideas formulated in an organized system of thought. Ideologies have been great motivating forces in advancing civilization and the cause of human progress. But ideologies, when made into gods, endanger human advance. When people ascribe infallibility to an ideology and make that ideology the only promise of salvation, then, indeed, that system of thought, whatever name it may bear, becomes a menace.

We can best understand the ideology of Communism when we reflect how in medieval days Holy Scripture itself was misunderstood and treated as infallible. And we need not go back to the medieval period of history. There are people in this very atomic age who worship the Holy Book itself, forgetting that this Holy Writing, though divinely inspired, has within it elements that are temporary and human. Hence, the Bible suffers most often at the hands of its friends.

The bible of Communism is "Das Kapital," by Karl Marx. This volume was first published in 1867 and represents the work of an outstanding student of economics who spent years in reflection upon the economic problems of life. No one can deny that "Das Kapital" is a unique and great work, but many of its theories no longer hold water and are meaningless in our own day and generation. For example, the Communists who worship "Das Kapital" as infallible are in a state of confusion. They cannot understand how it is that American capitalism still endures and has not collapsed in accordance with the prophecy of Karl Marx.

Of course, there is the danger, too, on our part that we might make an idol of our present-day democracy. Our democracy is far from being infallible. It is far from perfect and there is much we must do to make it a growing process toward a state of perfection. We can best meet the challenge of Communism by perfecting a democratic way of life. But let us not become orthodox in our democratic thinking for the orthodoxy of any ideology results in the closed mind and leads its adherents to become persecutors and inquisitors of those who dare to differ.

Human progress, too, depends on mobility of thought and not fixity of thought. Hence, we can understand the tragedy of the Soviets at present engaging in inquisitions and in the persecution of all those who dare to differ from the orthodoxy held by the Soviets. The present-day worship of ideologies is due to a sense of arrogance which possesses so many. If we but practice humility in declaring our opinions, whatever they may be, and realize that revelation is progressive and God daily reveals unto man new discoveries, we would be a generation blessed with happiness most abundantly.

Above all else, in the pursuit of truth, we must ever try to live by the light of reason. For so many this important light burns very dimly and hence we live irrationally, resulting even in cold wars which in turn may result in physical warfare and the very destruction of our civilization. Let us, therefore, stop dancing madly around our ideologies and let us examine these lest we become idol worshippers and forget God who bids us all to live in brotherhood and in justice and in a spirit of genuine good will. Must man descend again to the beast and engage in world suicide by planning another war? We of the West and they of the East must realize that whatever ideologies we in turn uphold, these have elements of error and fallibility and above them is sovereign God, the Father of us all.

"MAGIC FINGER"

his ashes strewn at sea either by a Navy plane or vessel.

The pianist was born in Cambridge, Mass., on April 1, 1909. His parents were Frank Duchin and Mrs. Tillie Baron Duchin. It was his mother who started him at the piano for which he was said at first to have shown no marked propensity.

Later, when his routine exercises at the keyboard had given way to more advanced études and other pieces, his interest was aroused. However, his father, who owned several drug stores in Boston, intended that he should follow his own trade of pharmacist, and after he was graduated from the Beverly (Mass.) High School, he matriculated at the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy.

He played the piano for College bands and also for local orchestras, and attracted the attention of Elliott Daniel, later composer for Walt Disney. Duchin came to New York in 1928 and received an audition from Leo Reisman, orchestra leader, who was then playing at the old Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. Mr. Reisman offered him a job as pianist, which he accepted on condition that he be permitted to return to college and graduate.

In 1929 he received his Ph. G. degree, but in the meantime he had found that playing at weddings and Saturday night dances earned him more money than filling in behind the counter in his father's stores. He rejoined the Reisman band, which was then at the Central Park Casino. He never returned to pharmacy.

In 1931 the manager of the casino asked Duchin to form his own band. The Duchin orchestra made its debut on Labor Day of that year, and within two years had won such wide acclaim that major advertisers had become interested in them.

Duchin's style of piano-playing was considered restrained, in relation to the moderns. He was a "magic finger" artist who ran all over the ivories, extemporizing in key with the melody, a method which first appealed greatly to the society set and the dilettantes who frequented the casino, but which soon became popular with everyone. He also excelled at original renditions of the blues. At one time his fingers were reported insured for $150,000.

In 1935, Mr. Duchin married Marjorie Oelrichs, well-known heiress. She died in 1937, two days after bearing him a son, Peter.

He appeared with his band in several moving pictures, and was featured at most of the leading hotels. He wrote four books on piano technique and founded a school to teach it.

In November, 1947, Mr. Duchin married Mrs. Maria Teresa Winn, widow of Montgomery Winn and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Montague Paske-Smith of London. Her father was at one time British Minister to Colombia. She survives. A sister also survives.

Present at the funeral service were Mr. Duchin's second wife; son by his first marriage to the late Mrs. Marjorie Oelrichs Duchin, Peter Duchin, thirteen; Mr. Duchin's mother, Mrs. Frank Duchin, of Boston, and his sister and brother-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin Slate. Mr. Duchin's father was reported too ill in Boston to attend.

Honorary pallbearers were W. Averell Harriman, Dr. Slate, David A. Werblin, Toots Shor, Tex McCrary, Douglas A. McCrary, Leonard Lyons, Sol Rosenblatt, Jules Stein, Guy Lombardo, Emil Coleman, Harry P. Whitney 2d, Ambrose E. Chambers, William S. Paley, Mark Hanna, Robert E. Sherwood, Bob Considine, Harry Wilmerding, Joseph Noonan, Emanuel Sacks, Lawrence Lowman, Harold Cole, Richard Rodgers.

Also present were Mr. and Mrs. James A. Farley, Mrs. Richard Rodgers, Buddy Rogers, Mrs. W. Averell Harriman, Billy Rose and Mrs. Rose, the former Eleanor Holm; Ethel Merman and her husband, Robert Leavitt; Mr. and Mrs. Quentin Reynolds, Jules Glaenzer, Mr. and Mrs. George Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Ready, Ed. Wynn, William Gaxton, Robert Montgomery, Mrs. Julien St. T. Chaqueneau and Claude C. Philippe.

whose studies had been interrupted or postponed by the outbreak of hostilities in 1948, including one hundred World War veterans who, having entered the University shortly after demobilization from the British Forces, were again obliged to break off their studies and re-enlist in the Defence Forces. Average age of these students was correspondingly high, and included a considerable number over the age of twenty-three, many of whom were married.

In these circumstances, it was perhaps natural that the chief concern of most was to devote a maximum of time to study and a minimum to those other activities usually characteristic of University life under normal conditions.

A cold that starts with chills and turns to feverishness may be the onset of flu or, in the case of children, it could be one of the contagious diseases. A doctor should be consulted immediately in such cases.

To Endow First Chair In U.S. In Modern Hebrew

New York University's chair of Hebrew Culture, which was established in 1944, will be endowed in perpetuity through a fund of $250,000, it was announced by Maximilian Moss, president of the New York City Board of Education and chairman of the Hebrew Chair Endowment Fund.

The fund hopes to raise the money by June. New York University introduced the study of Hebrew in 1934 when two non-credit courses were given in the university's division of general education. Four years later Hebrew was introduced as an accredited subject, and in 1944 the first chair of Modern Hebrew Culture and Education was established.

"This will be the first time in the history of American higher education that a university will endow a chair in modern Hebrew culture and education in perpetuity," Mr. Moss said. "It will mean that students will be guaranteed the opportunity to obtain bachelors', masters' or doctorate degrees in the Hebrew language, culture or Jewish education as long as the university is in existence."

Hold 70 Services In Israel To Honour Nazi Victims

Memorial services honoring the 6,000,000 European Jews who perished at the hands of the Nazis were held in all parts of Israel, arranged by the Ministry of Religion. The principal service took place on historic Mount Zion, where Chief Rabbi Isaac Halevi Herzog and representatives of immigrant groups in Israel assembled hundreds of objects which had been fashioned from Scrolls of the Law by the Nazis. Rabbi Herzog and other participants in the rites covered themselves with ashes taken from a furnace symbolizing the destruction of the 6,000,000 Jews who died as martyrs for "Kiddush HaShem."

Chanting the hymns composed in the ghettos of Europe, the participants, led by Rabbi Herzog, entered a "Cellar of Anguish," a cave on the mountainside, where they lit a specially-constructed 31-branch Menorah, symbolizing the 31 Nazi concentration camps in which Jews were put to death. About 70 memorial services were held throughout the country.
